Backstreet Boys' Comic Secrets!

News Flash: In this issue, the Backstreet Boys travel through time in their very first comic! See if you can spot a few behind-the-scenes jokes:

- When the Boys land on the deck of the Titanic in 1912, they cross paths with two other famous characters....
- The caveman's walls are decorated with prehistoric paintings that seem very familiar....
 - And Professor Zink looks like a certain polka-loving villain who appeared in the 'N Sync comic in our June issue.

Write and let us know what you think about our latest music comic, remember to vote for your favorite bands in our music poll, and, of course,

Here's how to move and groove— Britney style!

By Yolanda Crous

Want to dance like Britney Spears? We asked Darrin Henson, Britney's choreographer, to show us some of her funky, footloose moves from the video "(You Drive Me) Crazy." Just do what Darrin and our model do below, and you'll soon be bouncing to a Britney beat.

3 Keeping your right arm in position, shift your body to the left. Your right leg should be bent, and your left fist should touch it. Remember: Keep looking straight ahead! In one movement, face forward and bring your left arm up to the same position as your right.

Cool! Now put on "(You

Dear ESPN Action.

Why do baseball managers wear uniforms, but coaches in other snorts wear suits and ties?

Amanda R., 9. N. Attleboro, MA

Dear Amanda. Rasphall teams used to have managers who were also players. In time, nonplaying coaches had to wear uniforms too, since they actually go onto the playing field. Anyhow, can you picture a pitching coach jogging to the mound in a fancy business suit? Nahl

Katie R., 10. Pekin, IL

Dear Katie.

When basketball was invented (in 1891), the rim was made out of a peach basket. They called this early game Net Ball, and played it with a soccer hall. But with every shot. the ball got stuck in the peach basket, so the inventor cut a hole in the bottom. Smart guy, huh?

In a large bowl, combine all the ingredients except for the grenadine syrup. Mix well using a rubber spatula.

Line cookie sheet with waxed paper. Use a rounded tablespoon to scoop out and form brain shapes. Drop mixture by spoonfuls onto lined cookie sheet.

Use a toothpick to draw a line down the middle of each spoonful. Each spoonful should now be similar in shape to a hard-boiled egg cut in half. Draw a few wayy lines on each side of the spoonful to make the transplants look more "brainy."

Place cookie sheet in the refrigerator to chill for at least an hour. Use your hands to reshape any brains that need it. Store extras in the refrigerator.
